THE PACIFIC RAILROAD COMMISSION.

The report of the Pacific Railroad Commission, upon which the final acceptance of the roads depends, will be ready for presentation in the Secretary of the Interior by close of the week. It is understood that the commission has agreed to recommend the acceptance, within all the same time it permits not some details in which the roads are not yet been brought fully up to the requirements of the law. Those details are held to belong to a class which time is needed to remedy, such as the setting of embankments not sufficiently settled, the completion of the telegraph lines, etc. The commission is the opinion that these details are not in such better condition than to admit the new loads.

ARMY ORDERS.

General Sherman has issued an order, directing that all reports from the sub-departments of the Quartermaster General's office, and from the several Generals of the army, instead of to the Secretary of War, as heretofore. This is in accordance with the first order issued by General Sherman on assuming command of the army, and is intended to simplify and systematize the business of the bureaus.

CHANGE OF CLOTHING OFFICERS.

Secretary Boutwell has issued an order forbidding what is view of paying a step to the almost shabby practice of Customs officers and others:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Oct. 26, 1869.

It is understood that one of the subjects treated of in Commissioner Delano's report to be submitted, next fall, will be his difficulty in constructing the present internal revenue law, particularly the sections about which arise in practice, and there will be a large number of such questions in the course of the year. Experts in their terms when applied to the subject-matter which arise in practice, and there will be a large number of such questions in the course of the year. who introduced to the meeting Col. Sickles, a very distinguished gentleman, who had come to Chicago to assist in the campaign. [Applause.] He was glad to see so many present, and he was glad to see so many Democrats present. [Laughter.] He was glad to see so many Democrats present, because he knew that they were the men who would vote the Democratic ticket
